Heart Health ...

Your winning goal

The National Heart Foundation has six good ways to keep you fit and heart healthy this soccer season (and beyond)... By following a few simple guidelines you can lower your chance of having a heart attack, or other related blood vessel disease, without drastically changing your lifestyle.

The good news about heart disease is that by making a few simple changes now you can lower your chances of running into trouble later on. Try these...

✓ Have your cholesterol level checked, preferably by your doctor, and lower it, if necessary, by modifying your diet (mainly by lowering fat). The Heart Foundation has good recipe books available through all its State offices for about the same cost as a ticket to the footie. Give us a ring.

✓ Have your blood pressure checked regularly.

✓ Eat foods that are low in fat (fat causes a rise in cholesterol), low in salt and high in fibre. Include lots of fresh fruit and vegetables.

✓ Make sure you keep your weight under control.

✓ Exercise regularly. How long is it since you've kicked a soccer ball around with the kids on weekends? But any regular exercise you enjoy will fill the bill.

✓ Take the salt shaker off the table and don't add salt to cooking. Look for food labels that tell you you're buying low-salt, low-fat products.

The National Heart Foundation, set up nearly 30 years ago, is a non-government, voluntary organisation committed to lowering the numbers of premature deaths in Australia from heart disease and other blood vessel disease.

Although there have been dramatic drops in deaths from heart disease, it is still Australia's No.1 killer.

Good eating and health habits start early, so make the first step now.

Team up with your kids, too. Heart disease is a part of your health you can do something about.

AUSSIE SOCCER

INTRODUCING...US

Welcome to the Aussie Soccer magazine, a bold new publishing venture.

The reasons behind a new magazine are our belief that soccer in Australia is on the way up and that the sport deserves a quality monthly publication which promotes and highlights the positive aspects of soccer in Australia, and at world level.

We are already showing our commitment by providing 56 pages full of colour as well as distributing the magazine at newsagents throughout Australia while retaining a cover price of only $2, despite the costs involved.

The value for money only starts there however. We want the content of Aussie Soccer to be what really convinces readers to support the magazine with their patronage.

We aim to provide you with the best in depth coverage of the best sport in the world, with the best pictures, the most accurate statistics as well as exclusive interviews and the best features.

Our first issue deals extensively with the 14 clubs in the National Soccer League but we will be extending our coverage to take in all aspects of the game in Australia from the juniors upwards in the coming issues.

Just as importantly, we are seeking involvement from our readers on a regular basis.

For that purpose we have formed the Aussie Soccer Club. All you have to do is fill in and return the form to us - we will enrol you as a member and send you your membership card. Members of the Aussie Soccer Club will have access through the magazine pages to air their views on any subject dealing with soccer. Membership also entitles you to free classified advertising space in the magazine to swap anything from soccer videos, to badges, ties, literature and pennants.

We have plenty of other plans for the club and its members including big prize competitions, discounts for approved products and chances to get free tickets to the big games.

There are no gimmicks - the free membership is more proof of our commitment to the publication and soccer overall.

MESSAGE FROM SAM PAPASAVAS, CHAIRMAN OF THE NATIONAL SOCCER LEAGUE.

The National Soccer League is proud to be associated with the launching of the new look "Aussie Soccer". The monthly magazine, with its in depth articles and reports will enhance the prestige of the league and its clubs.

There is no doubt that soccer has turned the corner and the 43,000 packed house at the Sydney Football Stadium for the World Cup game against Israel in April is an indication of the renewed interest in the code and our national team.

Although we are disappointed with our failure to reach the next round of the qualifying series of the World Cup, the standard of our game overall and the quality of players we are now producing, must give us confidence for greater success in the future.

I am certain that "Aussie Soccer" will be supported by all soccer connoisseurs and will become part of the soccer family.

GRAHAM ARNOLD

WADE, OLVER, YANKOS, SAVOR AND JENNINGS TOO OLD AS AROK RECOMMENDS A

Australia should organise a match for the 1989 Socceroos to thank the players of the eighties... and then should build a new team made of players who are 25 years old or younger.

That is the advice Frank Arok will be giving the Australian Soccer Federation when he gets consulted about the national team.

Australia bowed out of the World Cup qualifiers by managing only a 1-1 draw against Israel on April 16, when it needed a win to finish top of the Oceania group.

Arok admitted he will feel sick about that result "for the next 10 years" but added that Australia must start planning immediately for the next World Cup.

And he has already started formulating the ideal make-up of the team.

"I would like to have a big game so we can say 'thank you' to these guys who made up the beautiful team of the 80s," Arok said.

"Then we should start making sure that the younger brigade is kept together and giving them the international experience to build the new team.

"No one in the new team should be older than 25 because we should be aiming for 1994 from now.

"It has been proven that the ideal age for players playing in the World Cup is 28."

The 25 year old limit would rule out several players from the present team including Wally Savor, Graham Jennings, Jeff Olver, Charlie Yankos, Paul Wade, Oscar
Crino and Peter Raskopoulos.

Arok acknowledged that all those players are already over the age limit but pointed out there cannot be room for sentiment.

"Regardless of whether Frank Arok is in charge, I have no doubt in my mind

MIKE PETERSON

OSCAR CRINO

25 AGE LIMIT

that 25 should be the limit," Arok said.

"At most there may be one single player of around 26 and Crino may be that player.

"Crino, Graham Arnold (25) and Mike Gibson (25) should be looked at as the older heads of the new group."

Arok's contract with the Australian Soccer Federation has another year to run and chairman Ian Brusasco intends to ask him to start working on a completely new side away from the senior Socceroos - the Australian Under 23 side which will participate in the Olympic Games qualifiers for 1992.

Arok is quite prepared to handle that task with the coaching staff he has built around him.

"I have never handled a team on my own - I always have other people around me capable of taking over because sooner or later I'm going to die

"It is an education for them because they can't learn it (the international scene) in a club situation."

The assistants to Arok in the World Cup campaign were Gary Cole, John Maragitis and Bertie Mariani.

On the Under 23 side, the national coach said, "We have to put together the list of players who are eligible because that selection would already be getting trained, conditioned and taught the international experience. It is already too late to be starting now."

Australia also has to learn from its mistakes in the past World Cup campaign - not only from the playing side but also at the negotiating table.

Arok believes Australia's World Cup chances were hindered by the time of the fixtures.

"If we had planned the games to be in May and June, we would have been able to get the overseas based players to train with us for two to three weeks and get them conditioned to our system of play," he said.

Arok used four overseas based players in Charlie Yankos, Frank Farina, Edi Krncevic and David Mitchell.

Some critics have questioned their inclusion and claimed the overseas players robbed the team of the fluent play it had established in earlier matches.

"I would have been inclined to agree if we had won the game in New Zealand. But we used the home based players in that match and we were well beaten over there - we didn't command the game and we hardly came close to scoring.

"I remain comfortable with the choices I made with my selections."

Of the four used, only Farina falls into the age bracket Arok is planning for the next Socceroos.

"I would only be prepared to use the overseas guys if we can have them here two weeks before the game. Otherwise we would be wasting our time and energy.

"Charlie Yankos is the perfect example of that. He was conditioned with the team and tuned into all the tactics but the constant travelling prevented him from playing even close to his capabilities in the last few games (against Israel and NZ)."

Looking ahead the nucleus of the team is already there since a good number of the players in the squad are in their early 20s.

They include Gary Van Egmond, Andy Koczka, Jason Polak, Andrew Bernal, Mike Petersen, Warren Spink, Scott Ollerenshaw, and Paul Trimboli.

It is now up to the Australian Soccer Federation to put the plans into action.

A LOOK BACK...AND THE CRUEL STATISTICS

Australia began their World Cup campaign with a shock 0-1 defeat against Fiji in Nandi.

The Socceroos dominated the match but it was Fiji substitute Ravuame Madigi who scored the all important goal in the second half.

In the return match, Charlie Yankos relieved the anxiety by firing the Socceroos into an early lead with a spectacular shot from 30 metres and Warren Spink netted a second before half time.

In the second half, Yankos converted a penalty and Graham Arnold and Paul Trimboli added two more. A fracas broke out among the 22 players in injury time with punches being freely exchanged but the 5-2 aggregate put Australia into the main Oceania group with Israel and New Zealand.

Israel kicked off its campaign with Roni Rosenthal scoring the only goal in a 1-0 win over NZ in Tel Aviv. The Socceroos thrashed the Kiwis 4-1 in Sydney the following week, with Oscar Crino breaking the deadlock early, Graham Arnold adding two more, and Yankos scoring a penalty to make it 4-1 after Malcolm Dunford had reduced the arrears.

The Australians moved to the cauldron of Ramat Gan and achieved a 1-1 draw against the odds.

Eli Ohana shot Israel into the lead from a dubious penalty decision against Alan Davidson.

But Yankos levelled the scores with a superb 25 metre freekick into the top corner. Australia became group favorite and was expected to win comfortably in NZ.

Instead history won out and NZ retained its record of never having been beaten by Australia at home in the World Cup.

Dunford headed NZ into an early lead and after the Socceroos ambled through the next hour creating only one chance, Wright hit the knock-out blow by scoring a second goal for the Kiwis.

NZ went on to hold Israel 2-2 the following week to put new life into the group.

Over 40,000 turned out in Sydney to urge the Socceroos on to the win they required against Israel to finish top.

But a defensive slip allowed Ohana to put the Israelis into the lead.

Australia threw everything into attack in the second half and after surviving a number of swift counter attacks, managed an equaliser when substitute Paul Trimboli volleyed home three minutes from the end.

Italian referee Longhi blew the final whistle on the Socceroos hopes four minutes earlier than anticipated by not playing any injury time.

But Israel was a worthy winner and now goes on to represent Oceania in the next phase of the qualifiers.

Alan Davidson in action against Niklas Larsson of Malmö

BRAVO DAVO

Australian soccer has to put the past behind it and start planning ahead after its exit from the 1990 World Cup.

The Australian Soccer Federation will meet with national coach Frank Arok to map out a better preparation campaign to bring out the new younger generation of Socceroos who will lead Australia into the next decade.

Before that happens, Australian soccer has to pay tribute to the men who have improved our standing at international level over the six year period that Arok has been in charge.

Alan Davidson heads the list of those players after announcing his retirement from international soccer only a day after Australia bowed out of the World Cup.

"Davo", as he is known to players, supporters, and officials announced his retirement in 1988 but was talked out of it by Arok and played a significant part in the Olympic Games qualifying and finals campaign as well as figuring in his third World Cup trail.

He made his debut for Australia coming on as a substitute for George Christopoulos in a match against Czechoslovakia in Melbourne on February 9, 1980.

"All I remember from that game is that I ran and ran and ran. Czechoslovakia were here as the European champions and I think we got a draw (2-2) but all I could think about at the final whistle was that I was absolutely stuffed," Davidson recalled.

Since then he figured in matches all over the world against an assortment of teams ranging from Fiorentina, to Leicester, China, Juventus, Nottingham Forest, Iraklis, Scotland, South Korea, Brazil, Yugoslavia and finally this year Malmö and the World Cup qualifiers.

"I had 10 years of experience and been part of three World Cup campaigns, and I think it is time now to look to the new breed to lead the Socceroos," he said.

"There are plenty of others keen to get a chance.

"I know that I am coming to the end of my career and am in the transitional period where I am looking outside soccer for my future."

Alan and his wife Effie plan to build a house and start a family.

And the Socceroo already has bought a courier business which he intends to build up now that he won't have the interstate and overseas travelling commitments with the Socceroos.

"The highlights of my involvement with the Socceroos have to be the two games against Scotland in 1985 because it was the closest we came to qualifying for the World Cup finals.

"The Gold Cup against Argentina and Brazil also was a good campaign.

"And the Olympic Games was a unique thing for all of us and in some way will compensate for not having made the World Cup finals.

"But I suppose it is the disappointments which will stick out more and NZ figures in both matches which were the low-lights.

"They beat us 0-2 in Sydney in 1981 to knock us out and the 0-2 loss in Auckland this year also turned out to be the crucial result which cost us the Oceania group.

"I'm a bit disappointed for the team more than myself that it ended that way but I have no regrets.

"To anybody starting a Soccer career, I can assure them it will help them to mature in life, it will open their eyes to living generally.

"My advice is to go for it."

ALAN DAVIDSON'S INTERNATIONAL RECORD FOR AUSTRALIA.

Alan Davidson's 74 games for Australia makes him the player with the 7th highest number of appearances for the Socceroos.

He overtook Manfred Schaefer during the World Cup campaign.

The overall leader remains Peter Wilson (on 115) who is unlikely to be overtaken.

In full international match appearances (games between Australia and national sides of other countries), Davidson is 6th on the list falling just one short of reaching the half ton.

He played for Australia either at fullback or in midfield throughout the 10 years but still managed to score three goals - against Dinamo Zagreb and Indonesia in 1981 and against Taiwan last year.

Alan Davidson has become one of the All Time Greats of Australian Soccer.

ALL THE RESULTS, STANDINGS & FIXTURES IN THE WORLD CUP QUALIFIERS

EUROPE

Italy qualifies as host nation. 13 other teams to qualify. The winners and runners-up from grp 3, grp 5, grp 6, and grp 7 qualify for the 1990 World Cup finals. The winners from grp 1, grp 2, and grp 4 also qualify directly to World Cup finals. The two best from the runners-up in grp 1, grp 2 and grp 4, will qualify for the World Cup finals. The best two runners up will be decided on (i) points gained, then (ii) superior goal difference, then (iii) superior number of goals scored. If two teams are still tied, a play-off will take place at a neutral venue.

GARY VAN EGMOND

MELBOURNE JUST & AUSTRALIA

Born: June 29, 1965 in Sydney.
Height: 181 cm (5ft 11.5ins)
Weight: 76 kgs (12 st).
Status: Single. My girlfriend Annette is still based in Sydney.
Car: A Ford Laser bought when I moved to Melbourne in 87.

Occupation: I've been unable to hold down a steady job with the training and playing commitments with the Socceroos. I do some parttime work for my uncle's business. I used to work as sales rep.

Nickname: My curly hair has earned me "Harpo" from the Socceroos. At JUST I'm "Dutchy".

Club career: I played at Manly Warringah as a junior then moved to Apia at 14. I played 6 NSL games for Apia in 83-84 then went to Holland with Mike Petersen and stayed for a year. I spent a short period with Blacktown then played a season with Manly in the State League before joining JUST in 1987.

Favorite players: Ian Gray is the complete player. He is quick, good with both feet, a good header of the ball and can fill any job on the park. Overseas I admire Frank Rijkaard of Milan & Holland. He is especially devastating going forward and is one player I try to emulate.

Favorite teams: I followed Apia as a kid. Now I like Melbourne JUST, because of the way we play. Overseas, I'm a fan of Liverpool.

Favorite away ground in Australia: I always like playing at South Melbourne's Middle Park because of its surface. I believe the good park played a part in their success last year.

Favorite ground at which you have played: The (Dongdaemun) Stadium in Seoul because I made my Socceroo debut there.

Best Goal scored: I haven't scored in the NSL yet so I have to go back a few years. Playing for Manly against Polonia I picked the ball near the halfway line, evaded four opponents and hit a shot from 25 yards.

Best goal seen scored: One Liverpool scored a few years back in a big win over Tottenham. The ball moved the whole length of the field in about four passes and Steve Heighway crossed first time from the left for Terry McDermott to volley in at the far post.

Most difficult opponent: Paul Trimboli is one player who is hard to keep tabs on. He is small yet uses his body well and can hold a ball. He has got the natural knack to score a goal out of nothing. I found (Brazil's) Romario a handful when I came on as sub in my debut for Australia. Most memorable match: Australia's 1-0 win over Nigeria because it got us through to the quarter finals of the Olympic Games.

Own magic moment in soccer: Within 2 minutes of coming on as sub for Australia against Brazil, I saw Romario jumping in the air, bringing the ball down with his hand undetected and run on into the penalty area only to be brought down by Jeff Olver to earn a penalty. It wasn't my own magic moment but it was a bit special to see a crafty player at work.

Biggest influence on career: John Green (coach of Apia youths) who helped me make the transition from junior soccer. And Seki (Drago Sekularac). He had done everything in the game at playing level and knew exactly what he wanted from us. Vlado Bozinovski interpreted everything for me so although Seki didn't speak english, he left a big mark on my career.

Most embarrassing moment: Being nutmegged by goalkeeper Bob Catlin at training in my days at Leichhardt.

Miscellaneous dislikes: Melbourne trams. They take a lot of getting used to while you're driving.

Favorite other sports: I was an apprentice golfer but I don't get much chance to play it anymore. And I like a social game of tennis.

Favorite TV: I enjoy comedies especially Ronnie Barker and the Cosby Show.

TV shows you always switch off: Definitely "Neighbours". It's just so boring.

Favorite reading: I don't read as much as I'd like to. I like science fiction books. Newspaper wise, The Sun is a good paper. Oh and I regularly buy Best Bets.

Showbusiness favorites: Musically, I like INXS. My favorite actors are Eddie Murphy and Natalie Wood.

Best film seen recently: Beverly Hills Cop II. I only saw it on video recently and found it entertaining.

Best Friend: Andrew Becker. We lived close to each other as kids. I played junior soccer with him and we grew up together. He also has made the move from Sydney to Melbourne so we have stayed close friends.

What don't you like about soccer: The game not being fulltime in Australia. And lack of professionalism at club level.

Pre-match meal: I don't eat much on match day. I have a big meal the night before, then a bowl of cereal in the morning. Leading up to the game I have about four or five glasses of water.

Career after playing: I would like to coach but not at the highest level. The juniors are neglected and it is one area I would like to make an impact on.

Gary Van Egmond

at a personal level, I would like to start my own business.

Player to watch out for this season: Paul Trimboli. I think we've only seen the tip of the iceberg of his potential.

Advice to youngsters: Simply to be prepared to listen. And always to enjoy the game.

HALF-TIME

If National Soccer League history is any guideline, Marconi will not finish in the top spot at the end of the 1989 season.

But it is a safe bet that it and the three other teams just behind it, will stay in the top five by the end of the season to battle it out in the championship play-offs.

It seems equally certain that one of the bottom two clubs will be unable to fight its way clear in the remainder of the season and will end up getting relegated.

The predictions may not be the best news for Marconi, Blacktown and Heidelberg but they are the conclusions which can be drawn from an exclusive survey conducted by "Aussie Soccer".

Our survey compared the top five standings at the half way mark of the 12 seasons of the NSL with the final placements at the end of each season.

And we extended it further by comparing the bottom two clubs at the halfway mark with the two which ended up anchoring the NSL at the end of each season.

The results show that in 10 out of the 12 seasons, four of the five clubs which held a top five spot in the halfway mark ended up hanging on to the position to finish among the top five at the end of the season.

But remarkably only four out of the 15 halfway leaders (between 1984 and 86 the NSL had two divisions) ended up holding top spot till the end of the campaign.

If it's any consolation for Marconi, the Fairfield club is one of the three which hold that distinction. It managed that in 1979 when it led with 20 points at the halfway stage and finished the season on top with 40 points.

Sydney City managed that by consolidating its lead at the mid-way stage to go on to win the title both in 1982 and 1984.

And Apia Leichhardt went from strength to strength in 1987 hanging on to its halfway-stage lead to go on to finish top at the end of the season with 35 points.

RELEGATION

In the relegation comparisons, there were only two occasions in 12 seasons when both of the bottom two sides at the halfway mark managed to fight their way clear of those dreaded positions come the end of the season.

In 1978 Sydney Olympic and St George propped up the NSL in round 13 but fought their way above the bottom two spots by the end of the season.

And in 1985, Wollongong and Inter Monaro lifted themselves off the bottom two spots they occupied halfway through the NSL's

Northern Division to get clear of the relegation zone at the end of the season.

In every other year at least one of the bottom two at the halfway mark struggled right through to the end of the season and was either relegated or had to go cap in hand seeking re-election in the NSL.

What's worse, in 1981 and 1986 both clubs at the bottom midway through the season ended up holding the can by hanging on to the bottom two places come the end of the campaign.

The clubs with the unwanted distinction were Blacktown and West Adelaide in 81, Canterbury and Inter Monaro in the 1986 Northern Division.

Heidelberg, the bottom placed club at this year's halfway mark, faces a daunting task according to history.

at the halfway stage remained locked to the spot by the end of the season.

They were St George (1980), West Adelaide (81), Wollongong and George Cross (84), Footscray (85), Inter Monaro and Green Gully in 86.

EXCEPTION

Generally teams which occupy regardless of the fact that the NSL has gone from 14 teams (1977-80) to 16 (1981-83) to 24 (1984-86) and back to 14 (1987-).

a top five spot at the middle of the season can be relied to go on challenging for a spot in the championship play-offs.

The only exception to the rule was Melita Eagles which slid from fourth spot at the midway point to finish second last and got relegated at the end of the 1984 season. It collected only seven points in the second half of the season.

The "Aussie Soccer" survey was conducted at the halfway point

* denotes teams which retained their halfway Top Five spot at the end of the season. In the 'Bottom-Two' section, * points out the struggling teams at the halfway mark which failed to fight their way clear come the end of the campaign.

In comparisons over 14 team leagues, we found that collecting 28 points will practically guarantee a team a top five spot at the end of the season.

And in most cases, gaining 19 points will virtually assure a club of safety by taking it above the bottom two spots.

On these pages we list a season by season record of the top five and bottom two placings (with points gained) at the halfway mark and then provide the final standings (again with points gained).

Our survey is the starting point of the "Half Time" theme for our first issue in which we take a closer mid-season inspection at each of the 14 clubs which make up the 1989 National Soccer League.

Our close-up delves into the changes which went on pre-season, the performance of the team over the opening 13 rounds, and provides a pictorial coverage of the playing newcomers as well as listing the full squads with dates of birth for every player in the NSL this season.

AUSSIE SOCCER IS SMOKE FREE

Australian soccer is smoke free and leading the way for all other major sports. The "Australian Socceroos" have broken free of their bond with cigarettes and are now sponsored by QUIT.

At the same time, the National Soccer League has cut its ties with tobacco advertising.

Until now soccer, even Under 9 had to depend on cigarettes and tobacco to survive, That's finished as a result of an inspiring sponsorship deal recently signed by Australian Soccer.

The financial future of the sport in this nation is now secure following the agreement between the Australian Soccer Federation and the National Soccer League with the various State health and anti-smoking bodies.

Spearheaded by the Victorian Health Promotion Foundation and supported by Foundation South Australia as well as the other anti-smoking groups in each state, soccer has secured a lucrative sponsorship that enables it to turn its back on cigarette sponsorship.

Now its up to soccer players, officials and importantly fans to fully support the sponsorship.

The national alliance of the health campaigns and their sponsorship of soccer has major ramifications.

• The National team has now been renamed the "Australian Socceroos" and can compete in Australia and internationally, knowing that they are tobacco free.

• This will improve the public image and profile of the Socceroos and at the same time will make them a more attractive proposition to corporate sponsorship.

• At a grass roots level, soccer can recruit players, supporters and sponsors with a clear conscience knowing that they are no longer linked with cigarettes.

Soccer has promised that the game will be tobacco free in 1989 with the only exceptions to this pledge being at games played at venues where the advertising controls is out of the hands of soccer, e.g., Sydney Football Stadium and Parramatta Stadium.

However, on these occasions, tobacco signage will be covered where possible.

West End Brewers will remain as the major sponsor of the National Soccer League and for the first time will involve themselves in soccer in a socially responsible drinking and alcohol message.

As part of the sponsorship arrangement, many of the current on-ground signage will carry the health campaign message in the future.

The sponsorship means that all NSL teams and officials will wear the anti-smoking symbol on all playing gear, tracksuits and referees' uniforms.

The pre-season doubts centred around how Marconi would cope without Frank Farina.

Come the halfway mark, Marconi has turned everything around and the worry now is how the club can be stopped from turning the championship into a one horse race.

Marconi took over the league leadership in the sixth round and since then has strengthened its top position while the teams below dropped important points.

The secret behind the onfield success may centre around the professionalism which abounds behind the scenes.

The new grandstand and other improvements of Bossley Park as well as the appointment of Bertie Mariani as manager coach has put Marconi furlongs ahead of the rest of the NSL in terms of administration and facilities and, if nothing else, the club has become the flag bearer of the NSL and proof of what can be achieved even in the part-time set-up that still exists in Australian soccer.

Marconi lost Frank Farina for $200,000 to Club Brugge in Belgium and Tony Henderson who retired after nine years of NSL service.

The only close season arrival was defender Jean Paul De Marigny for $15,000 from Apia Leichhardt.

The strong squad which was already at the club took care of the rest.

DeMarigny took over the left-back role to allow Robert Wheatley to move to his best position at sweeper in place of Henderson.

Up front, David Lowe has come out of the shadows of Farina to lead the attack with verve and imagination.

And the added bonus was that Zlatko Nastevski continued the goalscorer form which landed him 14 goals from midfield last season.

The squad has depth in most positions.

Bob Catlin is kept on his toes by former Young Soccerroo Brett Hughes.

Gerry Gomez, Vince Colagiuri, Matteo Colucci, and Klaus

Okon are the ones ready to step in should there be any loss of form either in defence or midfield.

But, as if to prove that the club is not sitting back basking on its early success, the talk is that Marconi is involved in negotiations to bring out a striker who has played for Northern Ireland at full international level.

The rest of the NSL faces a hard task to topple the reigning champion from top spot for the rest of the season.

Sydney Croatia has tightened up the defence and reduced the goals it is conceding from over one a game to let in one every two matches.

But suddenly the goals dried up at the other end and it was one of the lowest scoring sides of the National League in the first half of the season.

The scoring shortage is all the more surprising considering it has Socceroos Graham Arnold and Robbie Slater as the two front running partners.

The shortage may be due to the loss through injury of Manis Lamond, who finished with 10 goals to his name as well as setting up several others last season.

The general consensus however is that the service has not been provided from midfield and player coach Vedran Rozic appears to agree judging by the amount of reshuffling he has done in the middle of the park.

Shane Clinch, David Rezo, Craig Foster, Mark Jones and Ivan Petkovic have been used in the three midfield positions in varying combinations.

But Rozic's dissatisfaction was shown by the signing of Burim Zajmi from Apia Leichhardt in March.

Rozic had shown his concern by seeking to strengthen the middle of the park from pre-season but the club's bid to sign Steve Gojevic fell through and the midfielder remained transfer listed at Preston Makedonia.

The coach did sign Ned Zelic from the institute of sport but is allowing the youngster to adapt in the youth league.

A third-midfield signing, Ante Rumora, was to return to the club but did not arrive until April.

Despite the goal shortage, Sydney Croatia led the league table for two rounds and was in the top five for the first half of the season.

Manis Lamond recovered from his injury near the halfway mark and if Sydney Croatia can settle on a good combination in the middle of the park it can make the championship play-offs again this season.

With the possible addition of a quality midfielder it may even go one better than last season when it fell at the last hurdle losing the Grand Final on penalties.

DESIGN NEW GEAR FOR THE SOCCEROOS—AND

WIN THE

PELE BALL

VALUED AT $1,500.00

Former assistant national coach Eddie Thomson suggested recently that the Australian Soccer Federation should update the Socceroos' strip.

"Aussie Soccer" is putting that challenge to readers by turning the idea into a competition.

We want you to tell us what you think the Socceroos should look like on the field.

And we have come up with a top prize for our winner - a soccer ball signed by Pele!

Socceroo Edi Krncevic got Pele to sign the ball last year when the living legend of soccer visited Australia.

The forward played in two World Cup winning finals (1970 and 78) and scored over 1000 goals in his lengthy career with Santos, New York Cosmos and Brazil.

In the picture he is seen signing the soccer ball we are offering as our prize.

As an added bonus, another living legend, Ferenc Puskas has added his autograph on the ball.

The Galloping Major of Hungary's magic side of the 1954 World Cup and was happy to put his signature beside Pele's on the ball.

The ball with the signatures, would be worth at least $1500 in any soccer auction worth its salt.

All you have to do to have a chance of winning it, is draw and color in the shirt, shorts and socks on this page in the way you believe the Socceroos' gear should look like.

Maybe you think it should resemble West Germany's new strip but in Australia's green and gold.

Or maybe you believe in a change of color to blue, red and white (Australia's flag colors).

Whatever your idea, we would like to hear from you before our closing date of May 28.

We will award the top prize to our winner and consolation prizes of "Aussie Soccer" tee-shirts for the top 20 entries.

The judges of the competition will be three Socceroos who have agreed to sit in and go through all the entries.

The Socceroo judging trio will be revealed when we announce the winners in our June issue.

So get your coloring pencils out, fill in the form and mail your entries to:

And watch out for further interesting competitions with top prizes in future issues.

Preston Makedonia has not been given the credit it deserves for its performances over the first half of the season.

Preston lost its opening two matches of the season but since then made the steady climb from 13th spot in the table to second and nudged itself comfortably into a position to challenge Marconi's supremacy over the second half of the season.

Makedonia's away record has been especially impressive getting victories at Adelaide City and Melbourne JUST and leaving Sydney with a point from each of its three visits.

The team has garnered the points despite suspensions, injuries and the absence of Warren Spink, John Markovski and George Slifkas through Socceroo duties which did not allow coach Andon Donceviski to field the same line-up twice in a row throughout the opening 13 rounds.

Players ranging from Spink, to Steve Smith and Andrew Zinni have admitted that the team has only been playing well in patches and that they expect bigger things once the team settles and strikes top form.

The Preston Makedonia side was virtually built during the close season.

The club lashed out $20,000 to sign Socceroo striker Spink from Melbourne JUST, $17,000 for former Socceroo Zinni from Brunswick Juventus, and managed to lure Young Socceroo Markovski for $14,000 from Sunshine George Cross.

Other newcomers were Robert Markovac, also from George Cross for a bargain $6000, and former Australian Under 16 captain Robert Runje for $5000 from Croydon City.

The four major signings - Spink, Markovski, Zinni and Markovac - grabbed the bulk of the goals to provide ample proof of their value.

Spink and Markovski grabbed most of the attention with some spectacular finishing.

But it's an open secret that the player Doncevski values the most is Zinni, whose speed and commitment has proved a vital means of carving open opposition defences.

It is significant that Zinni was missing in the match against Blacktown when the side put in a shocking performance and was lucky to get away with a draw.

One player who has taken some of the limelight off the newcomers is goalkeeper Phil Traianedes, who was in sparkling form consistently and made a number of saves in spectacular style.

Doncevski also singled him out for praise saying he deserves to return to the Soccerroo training squad after establishing himself as the number three of the country (after Soccerroos Jeff Olver and Mike Gibson).

Two youngsters signed by the club who are yet to play in the NSL are Dean Nicolaou from the institute of sport and Gary Rappos from Victorian League club Eltham.

All the signings came in to fill the vacancies from the massive clearout the club had after its near escape from relegation last season.

Among the familiar faces who were not retained were Ron Campbell, John Stewart, and Stuart Stevenson (all now with Heidelberg), Con Opasinis (now with Melbourne Croatia), Steve Gojevic and Mike McLennan.

Off the field, Jim Trajceviski retained his position as team manager but also become the club's major sponsor.

His company Meko Holdings is pouring $100,000 in cash over two years.

Chris Jankulovski is in his second year as president, while Les Voglis has taken over as secretary.

BLEIDELBERG

The Bleiberg-Heidelberg combination fighting a quick exit from the NSL

MIKE CHATZITRIFONOS... big find.

A turbulent three months marked Heidelberg Alexander's return to the top flight.

The club, trying to wipe out debts inherited when it got relegated from the NSL, convinced coach Jim Tansey to stick largely with the squad which won it promotion back into the League.

Tansey made some prudent buying getting a number of State League players for bargain prices.

Angie Goutzioulis, scorer of 10 goals in his first senior season with Caulfield City, was signed for $4,000.

His Caulfield teammate Ike Alagiozidis joined for $10,000. Defender Steve Douglas was snapped up from former NSL club Green Gully for $5000 and midfielder Jon Burgess moved in on a free release from Brisbane City.

But it took the club only five rounds to realise that the team was out of its depth through lack of NSL experience.

From then on, the club decided to buy its way out of trouble and by round 13 the squad was hardly recognisable from the one which started the season.

The new arrivals were John Stewart for $13,000 from Preston Makedonia, Alan Scott for $11,000 from Melbourne Croatia, Peter Tredinnick for $5000 from Apia Leichhardt, Garry McDowall for $18,000 from Brunswick Juventus, and Stuart Stevenson for $7000 from Preston.

After losing six of the opening seven games, Heidelberg gained three points from a win against Sydney Croatia and a draw against Preston Makedonia.

And the club was heartened by the adjustment from State League to NSL by a number of young players including keeper Mike Chatzitirifonos, 19, Nick Oulsalkas 20, and Peter Bordignon 20.

But successive defeats against George Cross and arch rival South Melbourne led to the departure of Tansey.

Len McKendry was the intended replacement but he turned the job down only a day after accepting it.

In his place the club appointed Miron Bleiberg, who had 10 games in charge of Melbourne Croatia in 1985-86.

Bleiberg started off his reign with a 2-0 home win against Adelaide City but acknowledged he faced a huge task to lift the club out of relegation danger in the second half of the season.

Quiet start, but Hellas is the N.S.L.'s

DARK HORSE

On paper, SOUTH MELBOURNE HELLAS appears to be paying dearly for being the most inactive club of the National Soccer League in the 1989 pre-season.

But what is really happening is that South Melbourne is growing up and has introduced some stability to a set-up previously only renowned for being the most volatile of the NSL.

The committee and coach Brian Garvey concentrated largely on keeping together the relatively young side which took South Melbourne so close to winning the 1988 NSL championship.

The club reasoned that the team had the missing ingredient of having a year's experience behind it and keeping it intact would bridge the gap and gain the title in 1989.

What did happen is that the club lost Soccerroo midfielder Paul Wade with a pelvic strain until the seventh round and his midfield partner Steve Tasios was ruled out for the opening nine matches with glandular fever.

Their absence contributed to Hellas having an unsatisfactory first half of the season which saw it hover above the relegation zone. The most painful results to bear were home defeats to Sydney Croatia, Marconi and Wollongong.

There were benefits however. Apart from the core of players from last year, the club regained Peter Tsolakis from a hernia operation, and also signed Mike Petersen on a year's loan from Brunswick Juventus for $10,500.

The introduction of another er exciting young newcomer in Victoria youth representative Damian Mori, who scored three goals.

And the chance for Kim Taliadoros, who made fleeting appearances in 1988, to get more opportunities of adapting to the NSL.

Another youngster, Bill Tsiakos, also would have got a chance but for an injury which sidelined him for several weeks.

Providing the club is able to field its strongest side without sustaining injuries, South Melbourne still has time to end up challenging for a top five spot - and reaching its pre-season aim of going one better than last year to engrave its name on the NSL championship shield at the end of the campaign.

SUNSHINE GEORGE CROSS

SUPPORTS SAY NO TO DRINK DRIVING

-05

A new sponsorship brought a much needed injection of funds, but on the park Sunshine George Cross has to prove there is...

LIFE AFTER JONESY

Sunshine George Cross was the club responsible for the new sponsorship deal for Australian Soccer obtained through the Victorian Health Promotion Foundation.

The club, without a major sponsor since joining the National Soccer League in 1984, approached the VHPF and got the positive response which set the ball rolling for the Foundation to also become involved with the Socceroos, the whole National League, and the various state federations in a sponsorship deal worth $7 million over five years.

George Cross, as part of the deal, is getting a $60,000 sponsorship from the "05, Don't Drink and Drive" campaign.

The Health Promotion Foundation, funded through a tax on cigarettes, has a target to buy out tobacco sponsorship from sport among its aims.

Terry Muscat, the George Cross vice-president who made the initial approach to the VHPF, has since turned his attention towards gaining the club a new and better ground in Victoria's western suburbs and has been dealing with the Sunshine council towards that aim.

While the activity has been going on off the field, the George Cross side was adjusting to life without John Markovski.

Markovski, nicknamed "Jonesy", progressed from the club's juniors to become one of the youngest players (at 15) to play in the NSL and has since established himself as a star of the League as well as playing in two World Youth Championship campaigns with the Young Socceroos.

The youngster moved on, accepting a lucrative offer from Preston Makedonia and his departure prompted new predictions that the club was doomed for relegation.

But John Gardiner used the money gained from the sale of Markovski and Robert Markovac to sign Paul Lewis for $17,000 from Melbourne Croatia and Ossie Latif from Albion Turk Gucu for $8000 to lead the club's attack.

The only other arrivals at the club were Brian Roberts from New Zealand and Pat Morley who was formerly with Linfield in Ireland.

The last two didn't establish themselves as a regulars in the side but the old stagers carried the club to a number of excellent results including a 3-1 win over Marconi in the third round which lifted Cross to third in the league for a week.

Successive losses to South Melbourne and Adelaide City dropped it down the table but the side then went through six rounds unbeaten to move back up around the Top Five mark.

Coach Gardiner has maintained that the first priority is to avoid a relegation battle.

But if the club can strengthen the midfield with a quality wide player, it may continue to surprise by earning a place in the Championship play-offs.

New ground, new coach, prize recruits in Adzic and Gasparini, bigger following and a new sponsorship all adds up to Melbourne Croatia as the NSL's

BOOM CLUB

Star signing Zeljko Adzic

Melbourne Croatia is set to become the boom club of Victorian soccer within the next two years.

The club has already set the pace by becoming the first Melbourne NSL set-up which owns its own ground.

After buying the area of land two years ago at a bargain price, Croatia managed to turn it into one of the better soccer reserves in Melbourne in a matter of five months before the start of the 1989 season.

The basics of a top playing pitch, spacious dressing rooms for four teams, terracing, fence and pressbox as well as a social club gained Croatia permission from the NSL to stage matches there.

But that is only the start with the club planning to finish a covered grandstand and installing TV standard floodlights by the end of this season.

Because of the location - a large majority of the Croatian community lives in the western suburbs - the club is guaranteed better support.

And having significantly reduced costs (not having to pay to use the ground), it can expect to be able to afford to get the best quality players in Australia in the foreseeable future.

Already this season it has brought over top attacking midfielder Zeljko Adzic.

Adzic, who played 10 games for Dinamo Zagreb before going into the army, spent the past two seasons with Hamilton Steelers and was a star in Canada's fledgling national league.

He scored 14 goals in successive seasons and helped the Steelers to take out the championship last October.

Heartened by his success, Melbourne Croatia went after Adzic's goalscoring partner, Armando Gasparini, an Argentinian who signed for first division side Cordoba after being the top scorer in Canada with 16 goals.

The player agreed on the club's attractive offer in April and is expected to be a big hit in the NSL for the second half of the season.

The man responsible for the interest in Canada's soccer stars was Melbourne Croatia coach Ivan Raznjevic who coached Vancouver and Seattle Croatia before coming to Australia last November.

Apart from signing Adzic, the club also made a number of interesting pre-season signings.

Ivan Kelic, the 1988 Victorian State League top scorer and his midfield partner Ivan Duzel were recruited from St Albans.

Frances Awaritefe, a striker in Australia on a working visa, gained a release from English Vauxhall League club Sutton.

Defenders Con Opasinis (for $11,000 from Preston Makedonia) and Stuart Cannell (for $4000 from Green Gully) were added after the backline was depleted early in the season with injuries to George Hannah, Young Socceroo Steve Horvat (another close season signing), Mark Talajich and Victorian youth representative Paul Jurcic.

Raznjevic's coaching methods met with good reaction and the team started off on the right footing by slamming 15 goals in its opening six games.

Kelic got eight of those, including a hattrick in a 6-0 win over Blacktown.

But after holding top spot in the league for a couple of weeks, suddenly - and for no apparent reason - the goals dried up and the club slid swiftly down the table as the side went through 500 agonising minutes (five and a half games) without hitting the back of the net.

The goal drought came to an end against Sydney Olympic and with the return of the club's Socceroos from World Cup duty, Melbourne Croatia can continue to improve and hold down a top five spot.

The time when Melbourne Croatia will declare outright ambitions to win the National Soccer League will be in 1990.

Off the soccer field, Melbourne Croatia made another significant gain during the season by gaining a new sponsorship from AMP insurance worth $80,000 over two years. Apart from the cash benefit, AMP is also supplying the club with an electronic scoreboard as part of the deal.

OLYMPIC M

SYDNEY OLYMPIC has not lived up to its pre-season ranking as the warm favorite for the championship.

An astute recruiting campaign by coach Eddie Thomson led to a strong belief that the club had the right combination of players to issue a strong challenge for the title after twice failing at the last hurdle - the grand final.

The strong squad Olympic had in 1988 was complimented with three excellent signings signed at bargain prices.

While he was on holidays in Scotland, Thomson arranged for the signing of former Young Soccerroo Alistair Edwards.

Edwards, who played in the 1987 World Youth Championship finals in Chile, spent a useful year at Glasgow Rangers figuring strongly in the club's strong reserve side.

The 1985 Young Soccerroo captain Andrew Bernal, was snapped up on his return to Australia from a stint in Spain and a season with Ipswich in the English second division.

And the third signing, Mike

McGarry, was arguably NZ best player in the 1988 Olympic Games qualifiers.

In addition Thomson reconciled his differences with striker Marshall Soper, who returned to Olympic after a period on loan to Wollongong and showed his determination by putting in a very hard pre-season.

Soper and Edwards were to replace veteran John Kosmina and Terry Patalis (who went to AEK in Greece in the close season) in the forward line.

But while Olympic dominated matches at times, Eddie Thomson's hair started to turn greyer as the forward line failed to convert chances into goals.

The side failed to score in five games in the opening nine rounds and the lack of goals has been costly in terms of points.

Thomson got frustrated to the point of bringing in youngsters and the combination of newcomer Jason Bennett and Abbas Saad went haywire in the NSL Cup banging in five of the six goals in a 6-3 win over St George.

And another youngster Steve Georgakis was re-introduced to the side after recovering from a broken leg sustained in 1988.

Despite the shortage of goals, Olympic slipped into the top five near the halfway mark and remains a threat for the second half of the season.

The championship is still a possibility if the strikers can hit their straps and start turning the near misses into goals.

Solid as A-ROK

Young striker Tony Krslovic (in white) in action for Sydney Croatia (against Frank Valentic of Melbourne Croatia) before crossing to St. George in round 5.

Frank Arok became manager coach of St. George in February 1982 and led the club to the NSL championship the following season.

Since then there has been a gradual change of policy with lack of funds forcing him to concentrate on talent produced by the club itself.

Eight seasons on from the appointment, the club is a shining example on how to remain a force without continually dipping into the transfer market.

This season Arok released one veteran, and signed three new players on free releases as well as promoting three more youngsters in the senior squad.

But despite the shoestring budget, the club performed solidly to stay in the top five throughout the first half of the 1989 season.

The new arrivals were:

* David Ratcliffe, who healed his rift with Arok and returned to the club after stints at Sydney Olympic and Wollongong.

* Ferdie Adoboe, the first player from Ghana to play in the NSL. He simply turned up on the club's doorstep and asked for a trial.

* Tony Krslovic. The highly promising young striker who has only been able to manage 19 appearances at Sydney Croatia because of the experienced opposition in the forward line.

Andy Harper who has had stints at Sydney City and Sydney Olympic also joined the club as a free agent.

From within the club's junior ranks, Arok promoted schoolboy Matthew Bingley and Jim Morakeas into the senior squad.

Morakeas filled in at right-back before David Green recovered from injury.

Bingley grabbed three goals in his first five appearances and virtually became a regular.

Ratcliffe, a centreback throughout his Socceroo days, was switched into a defensive midfield role to allow captain Andy Koczka to switch to the sweeper position occupied by Steve O'Connor, the veteran who was released in the close season.

The reshuffled side built on a shoestring budget defeated high

FAULTY FORECASTS

MEDIA PROPHETS GET JUDGED ON

The problem with pre-season forecasts is that nobody seems to follow them through to find out how accurate the predictions are. Well, "Aussie Soccer" is changing all that. On these pages we are presenting our readers with an opinion poll which was taken before the season kicked-off and which has been kept under wraps for the opening 13 rounds to find out how accurate the prophets of doom are. The 'victims' of our plan are 36 media men spread around Australia, who cover the National Soccer League on a regular basis.

We asked the esteemed gentlemen to predict the teams which will finish in the top five spots and to name the eventual champion out of those five.

After that, we asked them to use their expertise to tell us the two clubs which will finish in the bottom two positions.

Stretching it further, they had to predict the eventual top scorer of the league and finally they had to answer whether Australia's Socceroos would win their way through the qualifiers to get a spot among the finalists in the World Cup in 1990.

As a means of justifying their selections, we gave them a chance to give us one comment to explain one of their forecasts.

Halfway into the season, the poll turns out to make even more interesting reading than it would have done had the poll been published before the NSL started.

And there are bound to be some red faces among the people polled since what is happening in a number of cases is way off beam from what the prophets predicted.

George Cross, for example, was the overwhelming favorite to struggle at the bottom but is proving everyone wrong, managing not only to steer clear of the relegation zone but also being up there challenging for a top five spot.

And Sydney Olympic and South Melbourne are finding it hard to live up to the promise of being certainties in the race for the top five.

In the Top Scoring stakes, even one of the 36 reporters' crystal balls ignored the talents of Zlatko Nastevski.

THEIR PRE-SEASON FORECASTS

even though the Marconi attacking midfielder finished as the second highest scorer in the 1988 season. He is proving them all wrong by being the outright leader at the halfway mark.

But the biggest knowing smile must belong to Frank Arok. 62 per cent of the journalists predicted a straight out "No" about the Socceroos World Cup campaign, explaining that the opposition was too tough, the ASF wouldn't get the overseas based players and that the side lacked the experience of the 1985 squad.

Arok has already passed the stern tests of Israel and NZ to get to the halfway stage of making the media eat their words and appears to have more tricks up his sleeve for the remainder of the race.

A closer look at the poll shows that not all predictions proved to be wrong.

Every one of the 36 jourmos named Marconi as a certainty for the Top Five, and the Fairfield club is living up to the confidence shown in it by storming to a commanding lead by the halfway mark.

Heidelberg and Blacktown were among the popular choices to struggle and, sure enough, they are finding life a struggle in the NSL.

What has to be taken into consideration is that the forecasts were made for the whole of the season and most of the pressmen polled will claim they can still be proven right in four months' time.

Interestingly, Sydney Croatia is the warm favorite to take out the honors in the championship play-offs come August.

"Aussie Soccer" will give the media another chance to compare notes then.

Soccer Experts Before The Season

Will Australia
Make It To The
1990 World Cup Finals

Comment

Yes	Frank Arok's ability to lift players and to counter the oppositions' strengths will see Australia get to Italy in 1990.
No	Many overseas players are unlikely to be released, & Arok has not found an adequate stopper to replace Dunn or McDowall.
No	There may be weaknesses in Preston's defence but the side will score a lot of goals. I believe they will go places this season.
Yes	Olympic will win the NSL because it has a good coach, made very astute signings and has an excellent blend of youth and experience.
No	We won't be able to get all our overseas based players in the crucial stages. Getting one or two back occasionally is not going to work.
No	The ASF has stupidly agreed to a March schedule for our World Cup qualifiers when we won't be able to get our top players.
Yes	Vial is itching for the NSL & will get among the goals going into a finely blended team. He will profit playing alongside Steve Maxwell.
Yes	The stability provided by Arok and the experience gained from the Olympic Games finals will see us through to Italy.
No	The surviving Socceroos from 1986 are a touch on the old side & the incoming younger ones are not as capable.
No	The Socceroos will be forced into too many changes. Even if overseas players are recalled it'll be hard to mould a good side quickly.
No	Youthful inexperience cost South Melb in 88 but rebuilding's been done and the basis is there for a title side in 89 & years to come.
No	The Socceroos' unsettled squad makes even winning the Oceania group difficult. The South American hurdle appears an impossible task.
No	Israel is better prepared this time and Australia's preparation has not been the best. If we get the overseas players we have hope.
Yes	There is a new found spirit and courage among the Socceroos. And Australia has several good young players coming through.
No	Administrative bungling will cost us our place in the World Cup finals. Half the Socceroos will be unavailable for the ties in March.
Yes	Sydney Croatia has the crowd support, financial backing, stability at the club and most of all the team to win the title.
Yes	Israel's disorganised & has as many problems as we have getting players. 'Roos will have phenomenal support against the American team.
No	Heidelberg's soft approach to recruiting is a worry especially since coach Jim Tansey admits he needs at least two experienced players.
Yes	Sydney Croatia has a high class squad, a good coach, and has strengthened and stabilised its weak point - midfield.
No	Warren Spink is a classy goal sneak. With the array of talent around him at Preston, he has every reason to score a bagful in 89.
No	South Melbourne will win the NSL because of Brian Garvey's managerial & coaching abilities and the backing he is getting from the club.
Yes	South Melbourne has an exciting young team and I have a lot of faith in Garvey's coaching. This could be their year for the title.
No	The Socceroos have lost too many key players if we can get them back we will have a chance for the finals.
No	Marconi proved the best equipped club in 88. It still has the best quality squad and has a better chance of winning the title in 89.
No	South Melbourne has got the most stable side. Not having new players needing time to settle will allow the team to go one better than 88.
No	I expect Australia to win the Oceania section vs NZ & Israel, but the South American opposition will be too strong for us.
No	South Melbourne is the team to beat. The talented young side has now got an added year's experience and will win the NSL.
No	Australia struggled vs Fiji proving that the younger players still need time to settle. It's too early for them to tackle Israel.
Yes	The combination of the right coach, good players and the great spirit that exists in the Socceroos will get us to Italy in '90.
No	If we could get our top overseas based players for the World Cup, we would not only qualify for Italy and make the quarter finals.
Yes	Australia can make it to the World Cup finals provided it gets the overseas based Socceroos to play in the qualifiers.
No	The rhythm of the Socceroos has gone with the loss of so many players and they face an impossible hurdle in South America.
No	Dimoski scored 7 goals in 88. He has the ability to score a lot more after gaining the confidence from his settling down period.
Yes	Australia has a good young generation of players coming through. Under Frank Arok it has a good chance of getting to Italy.
No	The gradual rebuilding program Marconi undertook a few years back will continue to pay dividends. They will retain the title.
Yes	The South American draw is hard but Australia has a good bunch of youngsters who are learning all the time and can only get better.

11 NEWCOMERS AT APIA

APIA LEICHHARDT signed 11 newcomers by the halfway stage of the 1989 National League campaign.

The new look side was part of the changes which swept through all levels of the club starting with the backroom back in November 88. NSL executive member Nick Papallo, took over as president from Joe Prestia and his new committee decided not to retain coach Rale Rasic.

The coaching position went to Mike Urukalo, Rasic's assistant when Apia won the NSL in 1987.

Urukalo, 36, led Avala to promotion in the NSW first division in 88, losing only one game all season.

The massive recruiting campaign started in December and by the season's kick-off eight new players had been signed.

Apia paid $20,000 for St George's highly rated midfielder Pedro Ricoy. But Urukalo went largely for experience signing veteran Socceroos John Kosmina from Sydney Olympic and Steve O'Connor from St George on free releases, Craig Mason from Marconi, Kevin Hagan from St George for $6000 and sweeper Mirko Radosavljevic for $7000 from Avala. All five are over the 30 mark.

Others to arrive were Brian Ellem from Blacktown, Young Socceroo Peter Murray from Newcastle for $2500, and defender Jim Webber from the NSW State League. Young Socceroo striker Milan Blagojevic was signed by round 8 for $15,000 after a long running tribunal case against Avala.

The departures from last year's squad included Socceroo captain Charlie Yankos who signed a three contract with PAOK in Greece.

Others who left were Jean Paul De Marigny (to Marconi), Arno Bertogna (to Brisbane), Kurt Reynolds (to Blacktown), Terry Greedy (to NSW Div 3 club Central Coast), and Lawrie McKenna (to Blacktown).

Long serving players Terry Butler and Joe Watson were released.

The latest to leave was Burim Zajmi to Sydney Croatia, and his move created the visa vacancy for the club's most recent recruit Bruce Halliday, who played over 200 English league games in stints with Newcastle, Darlington, Bury, Bristol City and Hereford.

The new committee paid off $130,000 in debts owed to the players but gained an impressive $100,000 sponsorship from the Bertolli Oil company.

Urukalo's pre-season warning was that anyone writing the club off would be making a fatal mistake and Apia proved the point by climbing to second spot in the league after only five rounds.

However Marconi brought the club down a peg by recording a 5-0 win and a more realistic aim for the club will be to finish in the top five this season.

Adelaide City has made one of the best captures of the season in Milan Ivanovic. Ivanovic toured Australia with Red Star Belgrade in 1985 and was a regular with the Yugoslav first division club up to this season.

His release resulted from the friendship Adelaide coach Zoran Matic established with Drago Sekularac when the legendary figure was in Australia coaching JUST.

The defender only made his NSL debut in round 7 but the delay in his arrival (caused by visa complications) helped create NSL history.

Bugsy Nyskohus had announced his retirement from the NSL in 1988 but agreed on a comeback to fill the defensive gap and played in five successive games to take his NSL appearances to 299 before Ivanovic finally arrived to take over the sweeping duties.

Since no player has ever played 300 NSL games, Adelaide City delayed Nyskohus' landmark appearance for a home game. Matic asked the defender to play out the season but Nyskohus couldn't wait to get the milestone out of the way to concentrate on his new player-coaching job at Adelaide City's State League side.

Ivanovic was one of four new close season arrivals at the club. The others were:

* David Clarkson, former AIS player who was with Brisbane Lions in 88;

* Dane Sharp, from NSW who returned to Australia after playing at SV Horn in

GRAHAM JENNINGS

SYDNEY CROATIA & AUSTRALIA

CLOSE UP

Full name: Graham Mark Jennings.
Birthdate: January 18th, 1960 in Newcastle (Northern NSW).

Height: 179 cm (5ft 10ins).

Weight: 76 kgs (12 st).

Status: I'm married to Louise and have two kids, Elise (2 years 9 months) and Stuart (1 year).

Car: Ford Meteor wagon. I'm doing a lot of driving nowadays because I've bought a house and resettled in Newcastle. It's a two hour trip to training and I'm doing it four times a week. I share the driving with (Sydney Croatia teammate) Mark Jones, who also lives in Newcastle.

Occupation: Since I started with the Socceroos in 1983, it has been hard to hold down a permanent job. The longest one was as a legal searcher. At present I am a full time semi-professional footballer.

Nickname: Flash. Reporter John Economos handed me that one when I joined Sydney Olympic in 1979.

Club career: I played for Hamilton Azzurri and Adamstown in the juniors. I got promoted to Adamstown's senior team in 1976 and played for the club in the Northern NSW first division for two years before transferring to Sydney Olympic in 1979. I moved to Sydney Croatia in 86.

Favorite players: Peter Raskopoulos because of his natural playing ability. I don't have a favorite overseas player because I don't follow the international scene anymore. Since I've been in the Socceroos, I've grown out of looking up to big name players.

Favorite teams: I like watching Marconi and Adelaide City because of the way they play.

Favorite away ground in Australia: I like playing at Marconi because it is a nice big pitch yet has a nice soccer atmosphere.

Favorite ground at which you have played: I thought Udinese was a really beautiful ground when we played there in 1984. I would also have included Hampden Park in Scotland but the result didn't go our way (L0-2 in 1985 in the World Cup play-off) so it's not really a favorite. The main stadium in Seoul also was a great ground to play on during the President's Cup in 1987.

Best Goal scored: I don't get that many so I savor every one. I scored my first goal for Sydney Croatia last year in a 4-2 win over Apia and it was a big thrill. The TV cameras were at the game but unfortunately they were replaying something else at the time and they missed the goal.

Best goal seen scored: I don't think I'll ever see another like the one goalkeeper Mike Gibson scored at training with the Socceroos while we were at the Olympics. It was in a seven-a-side game, the ball came across and he hit a volley from 35 yards on an angle which just flew into the net. He almost earned a place in the forward line for the next game on the strength of that.

Most difficult opponent: Most direct opponents at international level are hard customers. You have to be so wary of them throughout the 90 minutes. But there isn't anyone who sticks out as a player who skinned me a number of times.

Most memorable match: All matches for Australia are memorable but the away game against Israel in 1985 stands out. All the odds were stacked against us over there and to come away with a 2-1 win was a great achievement. The 1-0 win over Yugoslavia in the Olympic Games also was a very memorable game.

Own magic moment in soccer: I'm happy in most matches when I keep my direct opponent goalless or when I set up a goal. One that sticks out was going up the left wing and providing the cross for John Kosmina to head in one of the goals in that 2-1 win in Israel.

Biggest influence on career: My parents played an important role early in my career. Tommy Docherty also was a big influence because he changed my attitude to the game and taught me to enjoy it a lot more. He converted me from a winger to a fullback. It was only after that switch that I came into the reckoning at international level.

Most embarrassing moment: In the opening round of the 1983 season, West Adelaide defeated us (Sydney Olympic) 1-0 with a shot from Graham Heys. I dived in to block the shot but the ball deflected off me into the net. It was my first ever game as a left back so it was not the best way to start my switch to a defender.

Miscellaneous dislikes: I've grown to hate flying. I didn't mind it when I first started off with the Socceroos, but the older I get, the more I feel one's got to lose when one gets into a plane.

Favorite other sports: I enjoy athletics and basketball.

Favorite TV: I find watching TV a great way of relaxing. I tend toward most sporting programs.

TV shows you always switch off: I catch a bit of daytime TV because I'm home during the day. But the midday soaps are one sure way of making me turn the box off.

Favorite reading: I read a fair bit. I'm into history books but I also like fiction and enjoy reading Robert Ludlum.

Favorite music: I'm a fan of the Beatles but I like most music.

Favorite actors/actresses: Michael Caine, Clint Eastwood and Cher.

Graham Jennings

Best film seen recently: Three Men and a Baby. I could relate to it a lot being a parent of two young ones.

Favorite food & drink: I love pasta, and eat lots of vegetables and fruit. A lot of people are going to be reading this so I'll say my favorite drink is water.

Best Friend: I've got a lot of good friends. My best mate is David Sweeney, who was bestman at my wedding. We've known each other since kindergarten and we played junior soccer together.

What don't you like about soccer: The standard of some of the NSL pitches we play on. Some of the grounds we have played on have been no better than paddocks.

Superstitions: I always put on my left boot first.

Soccer ambitions: The aim is to get to a World Cup finals. I would like to win an NSL championship with Sydney Croatia after missing out in the grand final last year.

Career after playing: I would love to tackle coaching eventually. Away from the game, I hope to start a business; the aim is to be happy in whatever I do.

Player to watch out: I liked what I saw of Paul Trimball on TV and in NSL games against him, but I'm really impressed now that I have seen him at closer range in the Socceroo squad.

The Person you would most like to meet: Paul McCartney. He is a living legend who has influenced today's thinking through his music.

Advice to youngsters: Enjoy the game. There is a tendency to push young kids too hard nowadays. It is surprising how much better you can play when you are relaxed on the ball.

WOLLONGONG

Strong defence to keep Wolves away from "cellar" door

WOLLONGONG and Sunshine George Cross are the two clubs which every year thrive on defying the experts by steering clear of the relegation zone despite fielding sides without stars.

Wollongong may not have the Alan Brazils, Trevor Francis and Paul Mariners this year but coach John Fleming has still moulded a well organised side around a cluster of experienced campaigners and some innovative positional changes.

Wollongong's strongest department is the backline which features former Young Socceroo Ray Vlietstra, the tried and trusted Jock Morlando, and former Wolves full-back Mike Hollifield playing in front of Warwick Young, who has proved to be among the best keepers in the league.

Fleming has built on that by switching Peter Kotamanidis, to the other fullback position.

Kotamanidis had played most of his 90 NSL games in midfield and attack but has adapted to the new position comfortably.

The switch allowed Fleming to move David Skeen to a defensive midfield position, which has also worked well for the team.

Ray Vlietstra

Wollongong has also managed to hang on to the services of mid-fielder Danny Crainie, who is proving the side's best player after accepting added responsibility in a wide midfield role.

And up front, striker Randle Easthorpe has come out from the shadows of the more illustrious guest names previously used by the club to lead the attack with verve and has showed enough progress to earn a call-up in the Socceroo training squad.

With no money to buy players, Fleming has had to look to youth to round off the side, and has unearthed excellent prospects in midfielder Mineo Bonetig and John Danzo.

Fleming admitted that the defensive stance may not be pleasing to watch but warned supporters to expect more of the same.

And that will be especially more so in the second half of the season since team morale took a battering after three successive defeats which including a 0-6 walloping by Marconi.

Blacktown is back

Blacktown marked its return to the NSL after a two year absence by snapping up several players with a Young Socceroo background.

But coach Les Scheinflug was still forced to go for experience after Blacktown took a buffeting of 12 goals in three successive defeats early in the season. The side steadied to win against Melbourne JUST and Heidelberg then continued to snatch points to keep abreast of the relegation zone by the halfway mark.

Scheinflug has stated he wants to ensure the club's re-appearance in the NSL is not a brief one season affair so that he will be able to utilise the enormous amount of talent of the Young Socceroos at his disposal in future seasons.

for a third shot at the NSL and this time it is

TO STAY

The club's major buy pre-season was former Young Socceroos skipper Kurt Reynolds for $19,000 from Apia. Reynolds left Blacktown for Apia in 88 for $14,000.

From the present Young Socceroo squad, the club snapped up Domenic Longo but the central defender has been ruled out for most of the season with an injury sustained playing for the Australian youth team. Two other Young Socceroos, forwards John Gibson and Stefan Jee, joined the club as free agents from the institute of sport.

They joined Young Socceroo teammates Peter Bennett and Paul Welch, who are products of Blacktown's junior set-up.

Other former Young Socceroos already at the club are Darren Northam and Jason Van Blerk from the 1987 World Youth Championship campaign.

Blacktown's other close season signings were striker Lawrie McKenna, from Apia for around $6000, and midfielder Tom Divijak, who joined on a free release from NSW Div 2 club Yugal. Scheinflug also snapped up Billy Wright but the NZ international only lasted two brief substitute appearances before being offloaded to Victorian State League club Morwell Falcons for $850.

Blacktown's promotion also signaled the NSL return of former senior Socceroo Zarko Odzakov after a season in the NSW State League.

Off the field Blacktown is planning extensive improvements to its Gabbie Stadium, including the building of a grandstand and the installation of floodlights this season.

NEW NAME, NEW OWNERS, NEW FACILITIES, BUT IT'S STILL THE SAME OLD

JUST BLUES

There may be a new name but Melbourne JUST finds itself in familiar territory facing a battle to avoid relegation at the halfway mark of the 1989 NSL season.

The club under its old name Footscray was a founder member of the NSL, but finished in the top half only once (second in 1986) in the league's 12 year history - and was a wooden spoonist in 85.

The name change in the close season came after the members sold the club to private owners.

Socceroo Oscar Crino, who has been with the club for two years, was one of the five new owner directors. The new owners ers paid off $300,000 in debts inherited from the old club and promised to keep the blue, white and red colors. They also gave a massive facelift to the club's ground at Schintler Reserve.

The improvements included a spacious modern social club, a new stand and the re-laying of the pitch to turn it into one of the best in the country.

But on the playing side, the new owners ran into problems.

Newly appointed coach Ilija Dimoski did not arrive until a week before the start of the NSL campaign. Dimoski came here with a big reputation after coaching Vardar and Napredak in the Yugoslav first division, but he lasted only eight rounds as the club lost five matches and plummeted to second last spot.

Along with the coach, the club dispensed of midfielder Vlade Torteovski, (a $7000 close season signing St George.

The coach's son Milan, the club's striker, lasted a further two games before being transfer listed.

The man charged with the JUST rescue mission is John Margaritis, who also has one of the best coaching records in the NSL.

The struggle is surprising considering the squad - already featuring two Socceroos and several experienced campaigners - was strengthened with striker Joe Palatsides and utility Mehmet Durakovic from Brunswick Juventus.

The duo are on loan for a year at $6000 apiece.

Margaritis went about tightening up the defence in his first few weeks.

Once the backline stops leaking goals, he believes the confidence will return for the players not only to play the skilful type of soccer JUST has been renowned for but also to lift the club well above the relegation zone in the second half of the season.
